The training courses, learning paths, assessments, videos, visual materials, and instructional methodologies developed by LearnIDHub are the intellectual property of LearnIDHub, unless otherwise agreed in writing.

Where training content is developed based on third-party technologies, documentation, or information (such as software vendors, technology partners, or customers), all intellectual property rights relating to the underlying technology, documentation, trademarks, and brand names remain the property of their respective owners.

LearnIDHub does not claim ownership of the underlying technologies or documentation. Its contribution consists of the original instructional design, learning architecture, practical exercises, assessments, audiovisual content, and educational methodology. These original works are protected by copyright and remain the exclusive intellectual property of LearnIDHub, unless otherwise agreed in writing.

For customer and partner projects, intellectual property rights, usage rights, and confidentiality obligations are defined contractually. Customer-specific information and confidential data are used solely for the agreed project scope and are protected through appropriate confidentiality agreements, including Non-Disclosure Agreements (NDAs), where applicable.
